  - Brenne spoke about the minimum wage being based on age or level of experience. She said the Department of Human Services (DHS) does not collect data about age or longevity of workers, so doing a fiscal note based on that would not be possible. There was discussion about the pros and cons of a statewide minimum wage, which led to discussion of a minimum wage based on geographic areas. The group discussed, at length, the benefits and hurdles of a statewide minimum wage versus one with different wages based on geographic areas.

- Brenne pulled up cost report information for an example nursing home online for the group to view. The group discussed job titles and the care related hours. The group discussed prevailing wage and how many different job classifications there are within that system.
- The group decided it needed to narrow down its requests to DHS for a fiscal note.
